

Summary Report: 2023 Anne Osborn international Visiting Professor - Argentina

I am deeply grateful to the American Society of Neuroradiology (ASNR) and Dr. Anne G. Osborn for giving me the unique chance to serve as an international outreach professor in Argentina.

My visit was centered in the vibrant city of Buenos Aires, which I had the privilege of experiencing during its premier radiology event, the Congreso Argentino de Diagnóstico por Imágenes (CADI) in late September. It was a vibrant gathering where I participated in various Neuroradiology sessions, discussing topics like 7T MRI, photon-counting CT, and fMRI. The event was not only large in scale but also impressive in terms of its content and reach. It attracted radiologists and scientists from all over Argentina, South America, and even from various parts of the world.

I cannot thank the conference organizers and our wonderful host, Dr. Besada, enough. Their invaluable support made navigating Buenos Aires smooth, welcoming me warmly into the Argentine radiology community, and immersing me in the rich culture of the nation.

On the first evening, there was a planned dinner with faculty members. Unfortunately, due to unexpected travel issues, I could not make it. However, the next nights were filled with memorable moments. One evening, we had a fantastic dinner accompanied by a captivating tango performance, showcasing Argentina's rich cultural heritage. Another night, we had dinner at the stunning Palacio Paz.

Its beautiful architecture was a sight to see. This also provided a great opportunity to meet and network with local radiologists, gaining insights into their work and experiences.

Outside the conference, I got the chance to explore Buenos Aires. I visited cultural spots, walked through lively open-air markets that showcased incredible local crafts, and tasted some of the most delicious food. Every aspect of the trip added to an experience I will always remember.

In conclusion, being able to represent ASNR in Argentina was a true privilege. The trip allowed me to both teach and learn from many professionals in South America and from around the world. I would highly recommend this enriching experience to all ASNR members.
